The Molotov Radio Factory is located at Moskovskaya Ulitsa in Minsk.¹ The Factory consists of four three-story buildings. It employs about 150 highly qualified radio mechanics, including some German Communists, and about six hundred other workers. A modern radio technical laboratory, which uses German equipment, is located in the plant; the factory produces radio equipment and radar for tanks and airplanes of the military air liaison section of the VVS, and also produces steering equipment for use in radio-controlled V-bombs.
